

PRIVACY POLICY

This privacy policy reflects the intent and commitment of Pari Home Care Incorporated (PHC) to maintain the privacy of our clients and others and inform you of our practice in collecting, using and disclosing personal information.

Personal information

Personal information refers to any information furnished to PHC that holds identifiable information about an individual or entity.

Purpose of personal information

It may be necessary for PHC to collect personal information in order to determine whether a business relationship is possible. PHC may request your name, address, and contact coordinates in order to establish your identity, for example. Such information will be held in confidence and shared with no one, unless authorized.

During a business relationship with you, PHC may need to collect or disclose your personal information. Whenever personal information is being collected by PHC, the intended use will be disclosed to you and PHC will only use your supplied personal information for the stated purpose. Under no circumstances will PHC use, sell or trade your personal information.

Billing information

Personal information may be required by PHC for billing purposes and other uses, during the normal course of doing contracted work.

Limits on personal information

PHC may collect your personal information in a variety of formats, e.g. online intake form, email or telephone consultation. PHC will only do so by appropriate and legal means and only when necessary for business reasons.

PHC has authorized third-parties to track general information about visitors to its public website, e.g. domain name, IP address, and the company uses "cookies" on its website which you may decline by choosing appropriate settings on your computer.

Personal information may be collected via PHC's website and other social communication channels in an electronic form, for example. Information volunteered by visitors to PHC, such as information requests and replies to its offers of service, will be used by PHC to serve its clients, prospective clients and publics. The personal information collected will be retained by PHC only for as long as required for the stated purpose, and no longer than dictated by law.

Consent

By providing personal information to PHC, you agree and consent to the use or disclosure of your personal information under the terms of this privacy policy. Your consent may be granted by signing a document, agreeing to terms in an electronic communication, or by providing your personal information voluntarily to PHC.

In the event that your personal information is required by law or under order from an authorized court, agency or government, PHC may be obliged to comply. PHC may need to disclose personal information for collection purposes or to pursue remedies or limit damages that the company may sustain. When obliged or permitted to disclose information without consent, PHC will disclose only the information required. You retain the right to revoke consent to your personal information at any time by contacting us via the email address or phone number given on our website, though it may result in the inability of PHC to provide further service.

Disclosure

PHC may disclose personal information to partnering organizations from time to time, under the terms that such information is managed under the guidelines of this privacy policy.

Security

PHC holds personal information in the cities in which it operates where it is protected and secured in keeping with best practice. Certain personal information may be stored in off-site storage facilities, e.g. website or survey data, some of which may be stored outside Canada and subject to the local laws in the jurisdiction where it was collected, i.e., Ontario, Canada.

Aggregated information

PHC retains the right to use aggregated information that may be derived from personal information the company has received, provided that the identity of individuals and entities cannot be determined.

Amendments

This privacy policy came into effect July 1, 2015. Any future change to this policy will be posted to the PHC website.

If you feel we are not abiding by this policy, please contact us immediately by phone at 613-266-6765 or email at info@parihomecare.com.